PS&PA-02 Ancient Indian Administration (Value Added Course)

If we talk about western life style and the theories given by western scholars, we see that these theories are being accepted, taught and practised by Indian Administration students and Administrators. But countries like us who cannot afford such a luxurious lifestyle, cannot succeed economically and socially by blindly following the western management techniques. We, as Indians have a unique living style and social system which needs the support of our own economic and Public Administrative system to develop an efficient society and economy.

But we are following the Administrative techniques of the western countries which are richer than us in resources. This irony may take the country downward. Hence, we should bring changes to the Administration courses and produce such administrators who are skilled to work in our economy as per our unique needs. Our ancient Administrative systems were working on the sustainability of the planet rather than encouraging public Administration.

Most of the people in India are working on Mahabharata, Gita, and Vedas, but other ancient religious pieces of literature also have a lot of information on subjects like science, mathematics, music, astronomy, geography, and administration etc. which deserve thorough study of the Public Administration concepts.
